

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
EASTERN DISTRICT OF MICHIGAN
NORTHERN DIVISION

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA,

Plaintiff,

v.

Case No. 16-20359

Honorable Thomas L. Ludington

DEMETRIAN DEVON MCCUNE,

Defendant.

ORDER DENYING WITH PREJUDICE MOTIONS FOR COMPASSIONATE RELEASE

Defendant Demetrian Devon McCune pleaded guilty to possession with intent to distribute heroin and possession of a firearm in furtherance of drug trafficking on May 20, 2016. ECF. No. 24. On September 1, 2016, he was sentenced to a total of 90 months imprisonment. ECF No. 29.

On May 11, 2020, Defendant filed a pro se motion for compassionate release. ECF Nos. 34 and 37. Defendant argues that he should be released on home confinement or time-served based on the COVID-19 pandemic and the deteriorating health of his mother.<sup>1</sup> Id. The Government filed a response brief objecting to Defendant's motion. ECF No. 36. For the following reasons, Defendant's motion will be denied with prejudice.

I.

Defendant seeks a reduction of his sentence pursuant to 18 U.S.C. § 3582(c)(1)(A), which provides:

The court may not modify a term of imprisonment once it has been imposed except...upon motion of the Director of the Bureau of Prisons, or upon motion of the defendant after the defendant has fully exhausted all administrative rights to

<sup>1</sup> Defendant's brief makes no mention of home confinement, but his letter indicates that he is seeking "compassionate release or home confinement due to the COVID-19 [sic]." ECF No. 37 at PageID.255. The Court construes Defendant's motion as a request for compassionate release, as he has provided no independent legal basis for a transfer to home confinement.

appeal a failure of the Bureau of Prisons to bring a motion on the defendant's behalf or the lapse of 30 days from the receipt of such a request by the warden of the defendant's facility, whichever is earlier, may reduce the term of imprisonment... after considering the factors set forth in section 3553(a) to the extent that they are applicable, if it finds that...extraordinary and compelling reasons warrant such a reduction...and that such a reduction is consistent with applicable policy statements issued by the Sentencing Commission

18 U.S.C. § 3582(c)(1)(A). The statute provides three inquiries that must be addressed in resolving Defendant's motion for compassionate release. First, whether Defendant fully exhausted his administrative remedies with the Bureau of Prisons (the "BOP"). Second, whether a sentence reduction is warranted in consideration of the factors set forth in 18 U.S.C. § 3553. Finally, whether "extraordinary and compelling reasons warrant such a reduction" and whether the reduction is consistent with the applicable Sentencing Commission policy statements. Each inquiry will be addressed in turn.

As explained in the statute, before a court may consider an inmate's request for a reduced sentence under 18 U.S.C. § 3582, the inmate must first exhaust his administrative remedies with the BOP or wait 30 days after making such a request. The Sixth Circuit has explained that:

By creating a compassionate-release option in the First Step Act, Congress gave inmates an option to seek early release on health grounds. The seriousness of COVID-19 and its spread in many prisons make it all the more imperative that the prisons have authority to process these applications fairly and with due regard for the seriousness of each inmate's risk. Free-floating exceptions to the rule, available to anyone willing to go to federal court first, will not help that cause.

United States v. Alam, 2020 WL 2845694, at *4 (6th Cir. June 2, 2020). Defendant and the Government agree that Defendant has exhausted his remedies with the BOP, but neither party offers any documentary evidence. ECF Nos. 34, 36, and 37. However, the Court need not make an exhaustion finding in this case because, as explained in Sections I.B. and I.C. below, compassionate release is unwarranted for other reasons. Accordingly, for purposes of this decision, the Court will presume that Defendant has exhausted his administrative remedies.

B.

The next consideration is whether the sentence reduction is warranted under the factors of 18 U.S.C. § 3553(a). They are as follows:

- (1) the nature and circumstances of the offense and the history and characteristics of the defendant;
- (2) the need for the sentence imposed--
  - (A) to reflect the seriousness of the offense, to promote respect for the law, and to provide just punishment for the offense;
  - (B) to afford adequate deterrence to criminal conduct;
  - (C) to protect the public from further crimes of the defendant; and
  - (D) to provide the defendant with needed educational or vocational training, medical care, or other correctional treatment in the most effective manner;
- (3) the kinds of sentences available;
- (4) the kinds of sentence and the sentencing range established for--
  - (A) the applicable category of offense committed by the applicable category of defendant as set forth in the guidelines...
- (5) any pertinent policy statement...
- (6) the need to avoid unwarranted sentence disparities among defendants with similar records who have been found guilty of similar conduct; and
- (7) the need to provide restitution to any victims of the offense.

18 U.S.C. § 3553(a).

Defendant's underlying offenses are possession with intent to distribute heroin and possession of a firearm in furtherance of drug trafficking. ECF No. 29. Drug-related offenses are serious, especially drug-related offenses involving firearms. Defendant has only served roughly half of his 90-month sentence.<sup>2</sup> Additionally, this was not his first drug-related offense. According to his Presentence Investigation Report, Defendant has been convicted of narcotics possession or delivery three times before, in 2000, 2005, and 2012. Furthermore, as explained below in Section I.C.2., Defendant poses a danger to others and the community due to his history of drug-related firearm offenses. A consideration of the § 3553 factors indicates that Defendant is not entitled to a sentence reduction.

C.

The next inquiries to be resolved in addressing Defendant's motion for compassionate release are whether "extraordinary and compelling reasons warrant such a reduction" and whether "such a reduction is consistent with applicable policy statements issued by the Sentencing Commission." The Sentencing Commission promulgates the United State Sentencing Guidelines ("U.S.S.G."). The applicable policy statement is found in U.S.S.G. § 1B1.13, which provides:

Upon motion of the Director of the Bureau of Prisons under 18 U.S.C. § 3582(c)(1)(A), the court may reduce a term of imprisonment...if, after considering the factors set forth in 18 U.S.C. § 3553(a), to the extent that they are applicable, the court determines that--

- (1)(A) Extraordinary and compelling reasons warrant the reduction;...
- (2) The defendant is not a danger to the safety of any other person or to the community, as provided in 18 U.S.C. § 3142(g); and
- (3) The reduction is consistent with this policy statement.

U.S.S.G. 1B1.13. Defendant's situation does not present extraordinary and compelling reasons for a sentence reduction. Additionally, he has not demonstrated that he is not a danger to the safety of others.

1.

<sup>2</sup> Defendant claims that he has completed over 75% of his sentence but does not support this assertion. ECF No. 37 at PageID.255.

The commentary of the policy statement provides additional guidance about which circumstances qualify as having extraordinary and compelling reasons. It provides:

[E]xtraordinary and compelling reasons exist under any of the circumstances set forth below:

(A) Medical Condition of the Defendant.--

(i) The defendant is suffering from a terminal illness (i.e., a serious and advanced illness with an end of life trajectory). A specific prognosis of life expectancy (i.e., a probability of death within a specific time period) is not required. Examples include metastatic solid-tumor cancer, amyotrophic lateral sclerosis (ALS), end-stage organ disease, and advanced dementia.

(ii) The defendant is--

(I) suffering from a serious physical or medical condition,

(II) suffering from a serious functional or cognitive impairment, or

(III) experiencing deteriorating physical or mental health because of the aging process, that substantially diminishes the ability of the defendant to provide self-care within the environment of a correctional facility and from which he or she is not expected to recover.

(B) Age of the Defendant.--The defendant (i) is at least 65 years old; (ii) is experiencing a serious deterioration in physical or mental health because of the aging process; and (iii) has served at least 10 years or 75 percent of his or her term of imprisonment, whichever is less.

(C) Family Circumstances.--

(i) The death or incapacitation of the caregiver of the defendant's minor child or minor children.

(ii) The incapacitation of the defendant's spouse or registered partner when the defendant would be the only available caregiver for the spouse or registered partner.

(D) Other Reasons.--As determined by the Director of the Bureau of Prisons, there exists in the defendant's case an extraordinary and compelling reason other than, or in combination with, the reasons described in subdivisions (A) through (C).

U.S.S.G. § 1B1.13. Defendant argues that the spread of COVID-19 throughout the nation qualifies as a compelling and extraordinary circumstance. ECF No. 34 at PageID.176. However, Defendant does not explain how his argument fits within U.S.S.G. § 1B1.13. Though COVID-19 could be considered compelling and extraordinary in the context of public health, Defendant has not explained how COVID-19 is compelling and extraordinary in the specific context of U.S.S.G. § 1B1.13.

Defendant's situation does not qualify as "compelling and extraordinary" under subsection (A) of the policy statement commentary. Defendant alleges no medical condition and provides no medical records. ECF No. 34 and 37. He only seeks relief based on the possibility of contracting COVID-19. Id. He identifies COVID-19 as a health threat, but the U.S.S.G. policy statement does not provide relief based on potential health risks. Instead, a defendant must have an actual medical condition or a terminal illness.

Defendant's situation does not qualify as "compelling and extraordinary" under subsection (B) of the policy statement commentary because he is 41 years old. Additionally, he does not qualify under subsection (C) because he is not seeking release in order to care for a spouse or child. He argues that he should be released because his elderly mother requires care. ECF No. 37. However, the policy statement only addresses spouses or children. It makes no mention of parents. Consequently, Defendant has not demonstrated that "compelling and extraordinary" circumstances support his compassionate release.

2.

The policy statement further directs the Court to consider the factors in 18 U.S.C. § 3142 in determining whether the defendant would not be a danger to others or the community. The § 3142 factors are:

(1) the nature and circumstances of the offense charged, including whether the offense is a crime of violence, a violation of section 1591, a Federal crime of terrorism, or involves a minor victim or a controlled substance, firearm, explosive, or destructive device;

(2) the weight of the evidence against the person;

(3) the history and characteristics of the person, including--

(A) the person's character, physical and mental condition, family ties, employment, financial resources, length of residence in the community, community ties, past conduct, history relating to drug or alcohol abuse, criminal history, and record concerning appearance at court proceedings; and

(B) whether, at the time of the current offense or arrest, the person was on probation, on parole, or on other release pending trial, sentencing, appeal, or completion of sentence for an offense under Federal, State, or local law; and

(4) the nature and seriousness of the danger to any person or the community that would be posed by the person's release...

18 U.S.C.A. § 3142. Consideration of the above factors supports the conclusion that Defendant would be a danger to others and the community if released. According to his Presentence Investigation Report, in 2005, Defendant was convicted of multiple counts of felony firearm and felon in possession of a firearm arising from separate transactions, along with related drug offenses and resisting arrest. Defendant was paroled in 2011. In 2013, Defendant was convicted of possession of narcotics. Later, in 2016, Defendant was convicted of the underlying offenses here: possession with intent to distribute heroin and possession of a firearm in furtherance of drug trafficking. Defendant's lengthy criminal history, which includes multiple convictions for drug and firearm offenses, demonstrates that Defendant would be a danger to others and the community if released. Defendant's completion of correctional programming is laudable but does not alter the balance here.

II.

Accordingly, Defendant Demetrian Devon McCune's Motions for Compassionate Release, ECF Nos. 34 and 37, is DENIED WITH PREJUDICE.
